Abstract Murano glass sculpture inspired by a blossoming flower

Color: black, with grey veins

DESCRIPTION

A piece of unique beauty, this Murano glass sculpture is made with iridescent sbruffi. An homage to the siderale technique used by Alfredo Barbini in many of his works.

The forms - shaped by the skillful hands of the artist - have been inspired by the magic of a flower opening the petals to reveal its beauty.

Designed by Giovanni Angi and handmade in Murano by Alessandro Barbaro for MuranoVitrum.

The sculpture is hand-made: each one is unique and different from the others, and can be considered almost as a one-off.
